

Hydrogen Storage Using Chemical Methods

Wenli Chen

Department of Chemical Engineering, Jiangsu University, Jiangsu, China

Abstract: Hydrogen storage is a key issue for the commercialization of electrical vehicles. Complex hydrides show energy-related functions such as chemically storing hydrogen atoms and reversible hydrogenation and dehydrogenation. In this paper, we will discuss the understanding of the mechanism of the process, using a ionic dynamics model.

Reference:

1. Motoaki Matsuo, Yuko Nakamori, Keitaro Yamada, and Shin-ichi Orimo. "Effects of microwave irradiation on the dehydriding reaction of the composites of lithium borohydride and microwave absorber." Applied physics letters 90, no. 23 (2007): 2907.
2. Motoaki Matsuo, Hitoshi Takamura, Hideki Maekawa, Hai-Wen Li, and Shin-ichi Orimo. "Stabilization of lithium superionic conduction phase and enhancement of conductivity of LiBH_4 by LiCl addition." Applied Physics Letters 94, no. 8 (2009): 84103.
3. Motoaki Matsuo, Arndt Remhof, Pascal Martelli, Riccarda Caputo, Matthias Ernst, Yohei Miura, Toyoto Sato et al. "Complex hydrides with $(\text{BH}_4)^-$ and $(\text{NH}_2)^-$ anions as new lithium fast-ion conductors." Journal of the American Chemical Society 131, no. 45 (2009): 16389-16391.
4. Motoaki Matsuo, Toyoto Sato, Yohei Miura, Hiroyuki Oguchi, Yu Zhou, Hideki Maekawa, Hitoshi Takamura, and Shin-ichi Orimo. "Synthesis and lithium fast-ion conductivity of a new complex hydride $\text{Li}_3(\text{NH}_2)_2\text{I}$ with double-layered structure." Chemistry of Materials 22, no. 9 (2010): 2702-2704.
5. Yu Zhou, Motoaki Matsuo, Yohei Miura, Hitoshi Takamura, Hideki Maekawa, Arndt Remhof, Andreas Borgschulte, Andreas Züttel, Toshiya Otomo, and Shin-ichi Orimo. "Enhanced Electrical Conductivities of Complex Hydrides $\text{Li}_2(\text{BH}_4)(\text{NH}_2)$ and $\text{Li}_4(\text{BH}_4)(\text{NH}_2)_3$ by Melting." Materials transactions 52, no. 4 (2011): 654-657.